

PRESS RELEASE

9th of February 2018

Local groups unite to take a stand against discrimination during International Action Weeks Against Racism

After a successful start last year, local groups are pleased to announce their involvement in the upcoming International Weeks Against Racism. Between March 10 - 26, organisations in Berlin Wedding and Moabit will work together to say no to racism and make a stand against xenophobia in society. For the second year running, Demokratie in der Mitte is partnering with networking organisation Misch mit! To run a series of events in the area. This year, Narud e.V., which is responsible for the Register in Berlin-Mitte, joined the organisers.

The organising team is pleased to see the return of some of our partners from last year, including the anti-fascist No Bärigida movement, community and refugee focused organisation Moabit Hilft and City Kino Wedding, alongside many others working in kindergartens, youth classes, refugee integration and so on.

The programme is a mixture of films, discussions, theatre and workshops, among other things. In the film events, the Kino in der Kulturfabrik Moabit will be screening a number of prominent films including James Baldwin's seminal look at race, I Am Not Your Negro and the Hollywood biopic on Malcolm X. Workshops include one by Amaro Drom e.V. that will look at racial stereotypes and one on work for refugees. No Bärigida will host another demonstration and Zirkus Internationale will host anti-bias training. But the list goes on and the full programme can be found here.

The planners hope to build on the success of last year, when more than 50 organisations hosting events to tackle the issue of racism head-on.

Demokratie in der Mitte said: "We are pleased that so many of our partners are involved and that we are able to offer such a strong selection of diverse events. The programme offers something for everyone - kids, families, refugees and the elderly and we are growing more excited as the weeks get closer!"
